Dear Jack:

Jacques is going to give you, together with this letter, a wine list of your private dining room.

In addition to the two that are needed, we have made a third one so that it can be sent to Mr. Ford. I don't know whether you feel that I should write a letter, or perhaps it should come from you, enclosing the wine list and inviting him to sample it.

The book is handsome enough to be a real show piece and I think it is designed to fit in with the decor.

I still hope to lunch with you real soon - let me know when you can stop long enough on your shuttle journey between Dearborn and New York.

Best wishes,

G. E. Lang
