

An international exposition in miniature is Ford Motor Company's "International Gardens" at the New York World's Fair. Visitors to the Ford Wonder Rotunda stroll through landscapes and past landmarks from 11 nations of the world. Delightful touches of animation appeal to children, and the authenticity of the reproductions is especially interesting for students of architecture. Above, visitors view an English village based on the historic city of York. Below, Walt Disney examines detailed work on a Nineteenth Century Australian mansion.
